OFFICE

1220 and 1222 Penna. Avenue

T. H. S. BOYD, Publisher.

GEORGE GARFIELD will be the 20th President of the United States, and his inauguration marks the close of the 20th year of the supremacy of the Republican party.

The National Capital will on the 4th of March present a scene of grandeur and beauty never witnessed on any similar occasion. The grand Avenue will be festooned by thirty-eight arches, representing the different States, and so arranged on the intersecting streets as not to obstruct the view of the whole length of this magnificent boulevard. The entrance to the Executive grounds will be through an Arch of Triumph, whose intricate proportions make it a grand feature. The style is German Renaissance, and consists of two square towers, spanned by an arch and capped by a very high belfry, from which it is intended to send forth a joyous peal from a chime of bells.

The military display promises to surpass anything witnessed since the close of the war, when the legions of Grant and Sherman passed in triumph through the Capital of the Nation they had saved. The line will extend from the President's House to the Capitol Grounds, and will mark an epoch in our history when hate and strife gives way to love and peace, and combatants become comrades, rivals old friends, and the blue and buff in civic procession to do honor to the chief of a united and prosperous people.

The Bureau of Public Comfort have provided seats, tables and accommodations of every kind, where all that come may be provided for at the minimum of expense. The people of the city are so respectfully have on this occasion thrown open their hearts and extend a joyous welcome to their friends.

The Grand Reception and Promenade Concert will be intended to close the festivities with becoming gloria. The National Museum Building, erected by the Government of the United States for the purpose of displaying the productions of the arts and industries of the world, has been very generously placed at the disposal of the Committee in charge of the Ball. With a capacity for 20,000, the Committee have wisely limited the tickets to 8,000, in order to secure perfect comfort.

The German Orchestra of Philadelphia, consisting of 100 pieces, will furnish the dancing music, and a separate band of 50 pieces the promenade music.

A feature of the occasion will be the number of distinguished persons present at this Reception. No rain has yet happened that the President, the retiring President, and all the ex Presidents living have been assembled on one occasion, and the record of ticket purchased, which show the name and residence of the purchaser, indicate that the wealth and culture of the country will be represented.

Arrangements have been made with the different railroads, with reference to special rates, and with the public and ample facilities have been provided for all who wish to avail themselves of this opportunity to visit the Capital of the Nation. The different public buildings will be lighted, and a generous spirit of sympathy shown by our citizens, so that the display of light during the day and the illuminations and fireworks at night will entertain those who are not participating in the festivities of the reception.

Attention is called to the following circular issued by Col. H. C. Corbin, Assistant Adjutant-General, U. S. A., and Corresponding Secretary of the Committee.

"This Committee is in receipt of letters from many organizations, military and civic, announcing an intention to be present at the Inaugural Ceremonies in this city on the 4th of March next. It is already apparent that the attendance will be larger and the parade grander than on any similar occasion in the history of our country. The citizens of Washington, represented by this Committee, wish by fittingly decorating the Capital and giving all proper attention to visiting companies to contribute their full share to the success of the pageant. In order that so many visitors may be properly received by the different Sub-Committees, and so that the duties of the day have been divided, and suitable assignments given them in the procession, it is essential that this Committee should be furnished at once with the information called for by the annexed memorandum. Name of organization, full name and address of its commanding officer, number of members who will come to Washington, character of the organization, and whether uniformed or ununiformed, armed or unarmed, if composed exclusively of veterans of the late war, state the fact; whether it will bring a band with it, and if so, the number of instruments; on what day it will reach Washington, and how long it expects to stay; whether it is already engaged quarters in Washington, and if so, where; give the street and number, if possible, the name and address of the agent of the organization in Washington, if any. You are therefore requested to fill up the blanks in this memorandum, and return as soon as you can to the Committee."

"This Committee will do all in its power to provide for the comfort of such organizations as may desire to be of their coming. It cannot, of course, furnish quarters or subsistence; and that they may be too late on this score it is earnestly requested that each visiting organization send an agent to the Committee, or appoint some one already in the city, to confer with authority to make arrangements for quarters and subsistence. Such reports should be sent to these Headquarters, where they will receive information as to rooms and places, and will be aided in finding accommodations for their organization. This Committee cannot be responsible for any discomfort which may result from a delay in reporting on this subject."

"It is also recommended that each visiting organization, when it arrives within three hours of the Capital, telegraph the fact to this Committee."

Inaugural Notes.

In future issues of THE PROGRAMME will appear full page views of the Museum Building, consisting of outside view of building, interior view of Ball-room, with its decorations for the Grand Inaugural Ball, as also the floor plan containing dressing-rooms, hat-rooms, lunch-rooms, and President's Reception room.

THE GRAND RECEPTION AND BALL which is to be given in the new National Museum building on the night of the 4th of March, is to put into insignificance all previous efforts in this direction; and it is safe to say a more magnificent gathering in a more commodious and elegantly arranged building has never been witnessed on this continent.

CALIFORNIA. — San Francisco has subscribed $40,000 to send a military company to Washington, and, in addition to this, we understand that there will be one or two veteran organizations.

MAJOR JAS. McNEAR, Jr., with Mr. Joseph L. Savage, have had manufactured a handsome Inauguration Badge, which they are reserving for a deed figure, particularly to Clubs intending to participate in the Inaugural Procession.

The number of tickets of admission to the Ball-Room will be absolutely limited to 8,000, and no free list will be allowed. This rule will be so strictly enforced that we understand the invited guests will be limited to the retiring President, the President and Vice President elect, and possibly Generals Grant and Hancock.

The details for carrying into effect all the various arrangements attending the holding of such a vast crowd of persons are being perfected with marvellous rapidity, full particulars of which, together with the names of the gentlemen having them in charge, we will publish in our next.

The price of the Ball tickets has been fixed at five dollars for each person, and arrangements are being completed for the erection of a suitable room where a lunch, consisting of cold meats, sandwiches, cream, &c., may be procured. It is not intended that this lunch, which will be substantial rather than showy, shall exceed more than one dollar for each person.

Fourth of March Mementos and Ball-Room Decorations, including the beautiful green garlands, with the white, red, blue, and yellow flounces attached, that decorate the interior of the National Museum, will be sold after the Ball to all who may wish to procure them as a memento of this great and glorious occasion for six cents per yard. For large quantities a liberal discount will be made. Address, McIntire & Co., Marshall House, Washington, D. C.

The music for the occasion will be furnished by several of the finest bands in the Union. A special band of over one hundred pieces, with musicians selected from the country at large, and drilled into perfection by one of the best leaders in the United States, will furnish the dancing music.

The reception of the President will probably be from 9 to 11, when dancing will commence. Special Bands will furnish promenade music in the intervals of dancing, and sets will be formed to the sound of the cornet.

The floor will be provided by the best-looking young men in Washington at the time, under the leadership of Maj. Geo. M. Lockwood, Chief Clerk of the Interior Department.

The magnificent hall has a dancing capacity for six hundred sets, and from its peculiar circular shape, every part will be within easy hearing distance of the music.

The members of the Diplomatic Corps, and the officers of the Army and Navy, together with the visiting military organizations, will be in uniform. The dome of the building will be illuminated by the electric light and the entire S. E. end will be ablaze with gas-jets. In the centre of the Hall will stand a grand image of America, and pendant to every arch and projection will hang the coats-of-arms of the different States and Territories. These features, taken together with the beautiful dressing of the ladies, must produce an effect not often seen in this country.

THE GRAND FETE TO GARFIELD AND ARTHUR
AT THE
NATIONAL MUSEUM BUILDING.

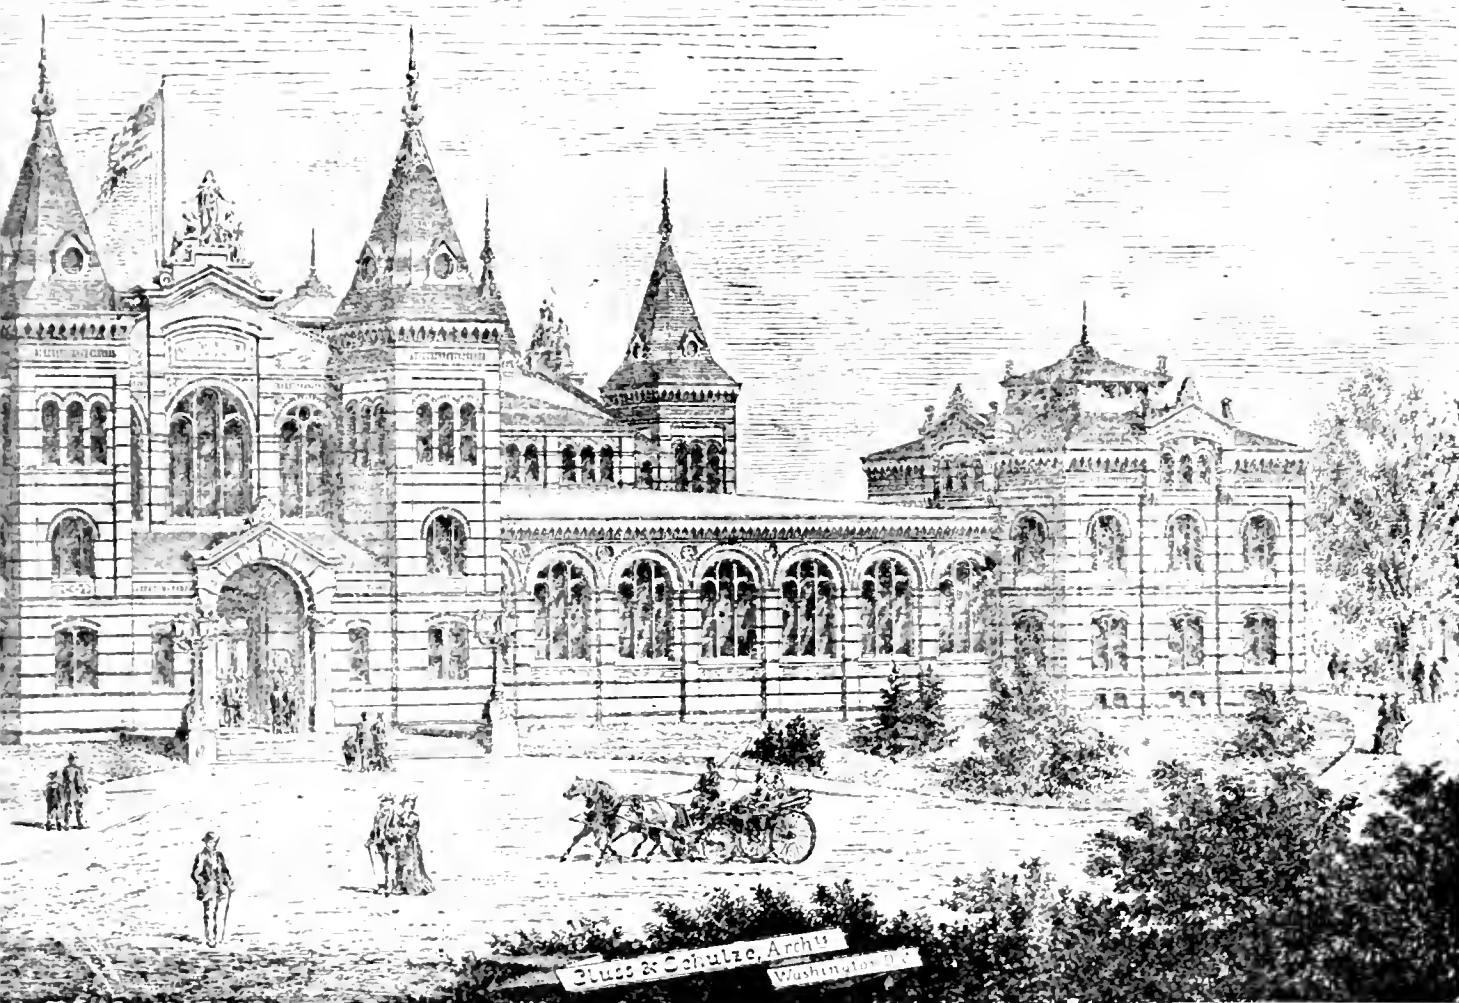

The grand National Museum Building has been generously tendered by the Government to the Executive Committee, who have in charge the Inaugural ceremonies. This building is a wonder in architectural beauty. It is constructed of red brick, interspersed with ornamental tiles, cruciform in shape, each nave being 327 feet, and, including façades, covering an area of 3 acres.

The decorations are artistic, munificent, and attractive, embellished by the coats-of-arms of the different States, handsomely festooned with State flags and seals. The space devoted to the promenades is ample and complete for 8,000, and when viewed from the balconies will present a tableau which will ever be remembered.

MUSEUM BUILDING,

Grand Ball will be held on March 4, 1881.

In the central dome is a colossal Statue of America, illustrative of peace, justice, and liberty: grasping in her uplifted hand an electric light, indicative of the skill, genius, progress, and civilization of the 19th century.

Radiating from this centre are 17 palisades, which will, by their effective illumination, present a scene of beauty and magnificence on the night of the 11th of March, never witnessed before on the American continent.

The magnificent balconies that overlook this grand amphitheatre will be resplendent with the wealth, culture, and intelligence of this great nation.

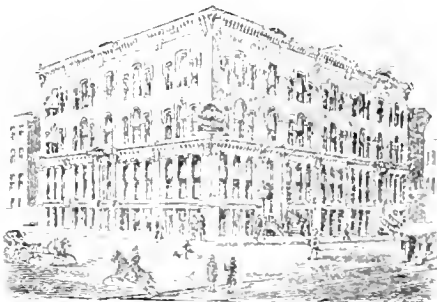

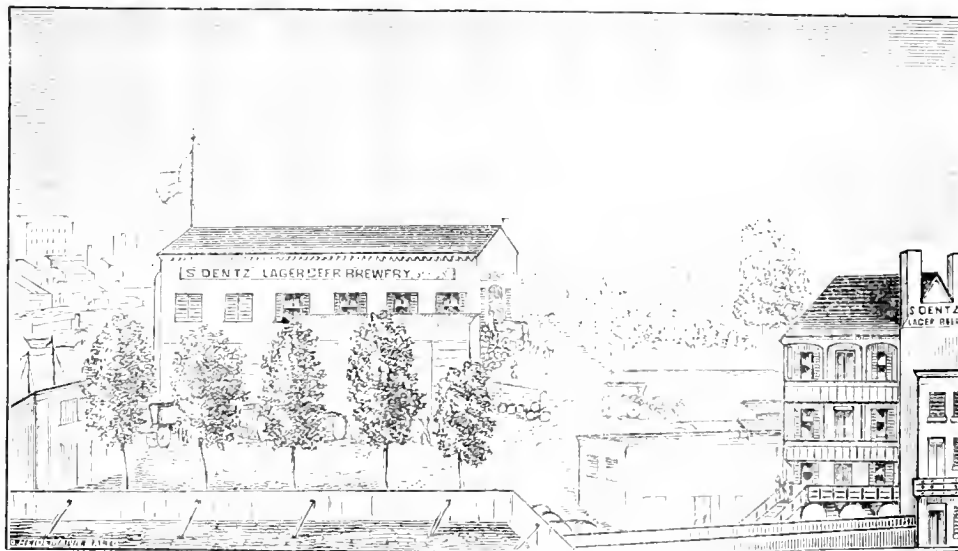

The grand entrance to this model structure is through a covered archway leading to the vestibules, from which lead to the corridors, in which are arranged the hat and coat rooms, retiring rooms, &c.

This grand fete, in which the Army, Navy, and Diplomatic Corps, with their insignia of rank in rivalry with civilians, accompanied by richly attired and handsome ladies, will move in triumph through the grand arches in symphony to the joyous paces of an orchestra composed of a 100 pieces. On arriving at the Presidential Box they will be received by President Garfield, assisted by Vice-President Arthur, ex-President Hayes, Gen. Hancock, and other distinguished gentlemen, when the new President will receive the congratulations of a united and prosperous people.
